> > Do You Read Through Your Ears?

A noted reading authority states that most people read only as fast as they can talk. This is about 250 Precipitation in Stamford words per minute, because they yesterday: none. Precipitation "read through their ears." He exmeaning of the words directly to the brain. Instead the words travel through the larynx or inner ear. This is why many people murmus aloud or move their lips when reading; others unconsciously form the words in their voice box or hear them in their mind. The result is that most people are slow, word by word readers. Because of it, many men and women are forced to work harder than they should to be successful in their jobs. Many students waste endless ours studying when they could finish in half the time.

Fortunately, the condition is easy to correct. To help readers of this paper, or their children, a well known publisher has a free & L Q June 22 3 1st Q July 5 pamphlet which tells of an astonishing new way to read twice as fast, yet understand better, and remember longer. No obligation, it's free. Just send a post card to Speed Reading, 115 Grumman Ave., Norwalk, Conn.
